

INVESTIGATORS EXPLORE WRECK OF BURNED PLANE

Christmas Vacationers Die In Nation's 2nd Worst Air Disaster

TOTAL OF DEAD IS 56

Five Agencies Open Investigation of The Cause of The Elizabeth Crash

By Jack Lott
INS Staff Correspondent

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 17 — (INS) — Investigators began early today to explore the tangled wreckage where 56 persons died in a non-scheduled airliner which burst into flames moments after its takeoff and plunged to the ground "with a wall like a Banshee."

There were no survivors aboard the twin-engine C-46 which had taken off from Newark, N. J., airport with Christmas vacationers bound for Tampa, Fla. The dead in the nation's second worst air disaster included a crew of four and 52 passengers. Two whole families of four were wiped out.

Authorities said that identification of the charred bodies, jammed into a horrible mass in the skeleton remains of the plane, will be difficult and that the main reliance will have to be on dental work.

Five agencies opened an investigation of the cause of the crash which came seven minutes after the takeoff. They set up headquarters at the offices of Union County Prosecutor Edward Cohn, who is acting as coordinator for his own staff, as well as investigators from the C.A.A., the C.A.B., the New Jersey Department of Aeronautics and the Elizabeth Police Department.

Phila. Man and Wife Hurt; Car Skids on Ice Patch

When their automobile skidded on a patch of ice and struck a traffic standard on Route 13 at Beaver street, last night, a Philadelphia man and wife were injured slightly.

The injured are: Paul Blum, 32, and his wife, Patricia, 25, of 1357 Wells street, Philadelphia. They were treated at Nazareth Hospital, Philadelphia, for cuts of the face and head.

Mrs. Blum pushed her daughter, Michelle, four years old, to the floor, when the crash occurred, and the child was unhurt.

FERGUSONVILLE FOLK OPPOSE SEWAGE PLANT

However, Reasons for The Opposition to Proposition Are Quite Varied

"LACK INFORMATION"

FERGUSONVILLE, Dec. 17—The residents of Fergusonville and the area immediately surrounding it appear to be almost unanimously opposed to the proposed building of a sewage disposal plant near the Nesaminy creek at Ford road. However, the residents do not all agree on their reasons for opposing it.

One of the primary objections voiced during a survey taken among the residents was the lack of information available concerning the project. Mrs. Charles E. Hill, Sr., of Pine road stated, during an interview: "I didn't know anything about it until I saw some men cutting down trees and putting stakes in the ground in the woods on our property." She added that the surveyors had not requested permission to enter her land.

The land for the disposal plant is reported already purchased by the Danforth Corp., but the "right of way" permission to use some of the land between here and Fairless Hills in order to lay the necessary

LAD, 5, SUFFERS FROM EXPOSURE; MISSING 5 HOURS

Victor Jonaitis, Doylestown, Wanders from Parents And Gets Lost

ON A SHOPPING TRIP

His Feet Were So Cold He Thought He Had Lost His Shoes

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 17—Found after being missing for more than nine hours, Victor Jonaitis, 5 son of Edward Jonaitis, suffered a severe case of frost-bitten feet. The child wandered away from his father while on a shopping trip.

The child, son of Edward Jonaitis, an employee of the Naval Air Development Center at Johnstown, Pa., was barely conscious and whimpered: "I've lost my shoes."

His shoes, however, were on his feet. Physicians at Doylestown Emergency Hospital, where he was taken, said the boy's feet were badly frost-bitten.

After being brought out of shock at the Doylestown Hospital, the youngster was transferred by ambulance, under police escort, to Abington Memorial Hospital for further treatment. Doctors there said they would give him the latest drugs developed in treating frost-bite cases in Korea.

Victor was found by a posse of more than 100 policemen, emergency

BURGESS CALLS COMMITTEE SESSION

New Sewer Rental Ordinance To Be Studied at Meeting

INVITES NEW MEMBERS

Bristol's burgess, I. Johnston Hetherington, Sr., today said that he will veto the new sewer rental ordinance unless "given good and valid reasons why the sewer tax of 60 per cent of the water bills should be levied." Reasons given for such possible action by the burgess are because of "lack of study of the ordinance," and that he feels the ordinance is misleading.

Mr. Hetherington has, therefore, called a meeting in the municipal building for this evening at eight o'clock. He has invited to the conference the health and sanitation committee, and water supply committee. Also invited by the burgess are the recently-elected councilmen "for the purpose of indoctrination." "I consider the ordinance presented at the last meeting of council as misleading, and feel that it doesn't show enough study. But this is not due to any lack of study on the part of the health and sanitation committee," he said.

Electricity Off When Wire Snaps Due to Cold Weather

Electric consumers in the territory embracing Bath street, from Buckley to Route 13 and out Bath road to Magnolia road; Buckley street, Beaver street and Beaver Dam road to Magnolia road, were without service for an hour and a half this morning when a wire on Buckley street snapped.

The breaking of the wire, it is stated, was due to the severe cold weather.

The interruption in the service deprived residents of the area of electricity but service was restored at about 6:30 this morning.

Renew Filibuster to Block City-County Gov't Merger

Harrisburg—Senate Democrats lost no time today in renewing a filibuster to block consideration of a Republican-sponsored Bill calling for a merger of Philadelphia's city-county governments. Plans for the Republican majority to have the consolidation measure to be a special order of business as a means to limit debate were short-circuited. Soon after the gavel fell in the Senate chamber more than an hour after the scheduled 7 a. m. meeting time, Sen. Samuel G. Neff, (D) Lawrence, leaped to his feet and demanded the lengthy journal of the Senate be read word for word. The usual practice is to dispense with the reading of the journal. Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood, who is in the president's chair for the first time since the filibuster was kicked off last week, ruled that Neff's motion would have to be voted upon. From there on Senate business dissolved into a tangled parliamentary hassle as it has done for the last four legislative days.

3-Alarm Fire Keeps Phila. Firemen Busy

Philadelphia—A three-alarm fire in a North Philadelphia auto glass company brought harrassed city firemen back on the job today following overnight blazes in a rug factory and an apartment house. A 5-month-old baby, Alfred Holten, Jr., was killed when a kerosene heater exploded and set fire to a third-floor apartment. The multi-alarm fire engulfed the glass firm's two-story brick building and poured thick smoke into the street, multiplying the hazards to firemen working in nine-degree temperatures.

Wants 12-Nation Commission to Study Proposals

Paris—Poland formally called upon the United Nations today to create a 12-nation commission to study both Communist and western disarmament proposals. The resolution was submitted to the UN's political committee in Paris by Polish delegate Stefan Wierbowski. He has helped spearhead Red blasts against the western disarmament plan which calls for demilitarization by easy stages with provisions for fool-proof arms inspection and verification of all disarmament claims. That Communist plan would leave the threat of Soviet veto action hanging over disarmament procedures.

EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Dec. 17—(INS)—An Allied tank-infantry raiding party peared into enemy lines northeast of the truce conference village of Pan Mun Jom today but elsewhere along the Korea front only minor skirmishes took place.

An Eighth Army Monday evening communique said the raiding thrust in the western sector was unleashed this morning. It provoked one hour and 45 minutes of fighting with a Chinese company.

It was the second such raid on the enemy in the Pan Mun Jom area in two days. South of the armistice parley site, Allied raiders fought with two Red platoons Sunday.

The latest Eighth Army bulletin said "light" Red probes were repulsed Monday in the west-central sector west of Chwon, on the central front southwest of Kumsong and in the east sector west of "Heartbreak" Ridge.

The tempo of the ground fighting was reduced but the Allied air offensive dealt heavy new blows to the Communists.

REV. GLEICHMAN IS TO GO TO RIEGELSVILLE

Accepts Call to Two-Church Charge, Effective 15th of January

NO SUCCESSOR YET

The Rev. Paul Gleichman, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, announced to members of his congregation yesterday morning that he has accepted a call to the Riegelsville Lutheran charge, which also includes the Lutheran Church at Raubsville. The change will be effective January 15th, the pastor, his wife and son moving to the Riegelsville parsonage Jan. 16th, and the clergyman occupying the pulpits at the new charge for the first time on January 20th.

Since the Rev. Mr. Gleichman came to Bristol May 1, 1946, the membership of the Zion Church has been increased by more than 150.

No successor has been named as yet, it is stated.

Prior to coming to Bristol, the clergyman served as a district missionary, doing administrative work, supervising village schools and churches in Madras presidency, India. He was stationed there with the United Lutheran Church Mission for a term of 6½ years. Prior to going abroad, the Rev. Mr. Gleichman was assistant pastor of the Lutheran Church at Frederick, Md.

GIRL FOR FAHEYS

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 17 — After deliberating 5½ hours Saturday the jury in the trial of Walter John Lowry, 36, Croydon, returned a verdict of guilty in the holdup slaying of David F. Sklar. Sklar was president and owner of the Safe Food Markets, Croydon, and was murdered on the night of May 19th, last year, as he and others were leaving the market.

Lowry is the third man to be convicted of the murder. The other two, Marty Pearson and Harry Chapasco, are serving life terms for the same offense.

The jury which returned the verdict at 11.15 Saturday night, was composed of three women and nine men.

The Commonwealth on Saturday morning had called Lieut. Lewis M. Whittecot, State Police fire-arms ballistics expert (Harrisburg), who testified as to the slug found at the murder scene and other details concerning the pistol that was used.

During the last several hours of the trial (Friday afternoon and Saturday) District Attorney Curtin had argued that, in his opinion, if Lowry was not guilty, he should have denied certain allegations made by Pearson in his statement. Instead of that, Lowry said nothing, the district attorney argued. "The defendant's statement, as written by him, and handed to the police and district attorney, is a complete denial," Attorney Back had argued, as the jury was retired pending disposition of the motion to have Pearson's signed confession kept from the jury. Curtin had vigorously objected and desired it read and admitted in evidence.

SLIGHT DAMAGE

Bristol firemen were summoned to an apartment in the Woler building, Mill street, Saturday at 6:07 p. m., where a lighting fixture had caused a slight fire. No damage reported.

Would You Call It "Dog-Sense"?

(By "The Stroller")

Farmers: William Kemble at Wheatcroft thinks he has the smartest dog in the U. S. A. And probably he has.

Hit by a school bus when he was a pup, "Rex," now nearly 15 years old, knows enough not to take any chances on the highway—Route 13. He will watch members of the family cross the highway, then off he runs down the side of Route 13, under the bridge which carries the highway over the canal, and meet whoever he is accompanying on the opposite side. "I cross the highway as often as 20 times a day," says Mr. Kemble, "and it is always the same thing. Rex goes under the bridge and joins me, then when I get ready to go back to the house he does the same thing. The highway divides the Kemble land, and the pigs are located on the opposite side of the highway from the house.

When "Rex" sees the school bus approach, he races alongside the highway to the stopping point, about 300 feet away, warmly greets the Kemble children, Irene and "Eddie," and is given one of their school books, which he proceeds to carry to the house. This is an everyday occurrence.

"Rex" is part water spaniel, and has caught one fox, three raccoons, and a number of groundhogs. "He's a good ratter, too," attests his owner. "When we get ready to go gunning, 'Rex' is always anxious to go along. You can shoot 20 guns at once over his head and he doesn't mind, but when a thunderstorm is brewing he makes for the basement, refusing to come out until the storm is over."

NOT ART

Whatever its intent "expressionist" sculpture, like abstractionist painting, seldom resembles recognizable objects, human or natural. Excellent technicians as some modern sculptors are, their human figures, animals and other models are elongated, distorted, compressed out of all semblance. The result is supposed to express heightened emotion or formal design.

On show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York are some of the results of the museum's national sculpture competition. First prize of $3,500 went to the distorted figures of two men, who at least can be recognized as semihuman. Second prize of $2,500 went to a work entitled "Animal Form I" which looks like some primitive beast flattened beneath a steamroller. Third prize of $1,000 went to "Striding Man"; suggesting a lopsided arrangement of those rectangular pipe gadgets on which children climb.

This is without doubt art in its upper modern reaches. When the competition was announced in April, conservative sculptors denounced the board of judges as too modern in its makeup, while advanced guard sculptors condemned it as ultra-conservative. Whatever else the awards represent, conservatism is not in question.

Sculpture can be one of the noblest of the arts. The classic statues of ancient Greece, whether in repose or in action, still have meaning for modern man, to whom a six-foot construction of steel cables, called "Peristaltic Vertical," on exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum, has no message. Art that baffles and confuses, however ingenious the concept and competent the execution, is seldom art.

WHO'S THE TITO?

According to Klement Gottwald, communist president of Czechoslovakia, the country has been saved by a hair from a fate worse than—well, capitalism. Vice Premier Rudolf Slansky, and several lesser lights in the present government, were arrested according to Gottwald, just as they were about to turn Titoist and flee to the West. The whole government is being shaken down and reorganized.

In due time, no doubt, it will be announced by Prague that Slansky has confessed to being an agent of American imperialism. He will either be done in with proper fanfare, or else will disappear with none at all.

Charges of Titoism against Slansky do not ring true, according to foreign correspondents, who say he is regarded as more of a Moscow Czech than Gottwald. There are plenty of wheels within wheels in this situation. The question is: Who's the Tito here? Traitors and counter-traitors play a desperate game. Winner take all, and the loser gets it in the neck. But the encouraging fact that emerges from this situation is that there is ferment aplenty behind this apparently smooth facade.

ECHOES OF THE PAST
(By Courier Staff Member)

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 20, 1903. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

LOWER BENSALEM—Saturday morning after a hard-fought battle which lasted nearly half an hour, Rev. Forrest Dager succeeded in landing a 15-pound carp. The trolley car was about to cross the bridge at Bridgewater, but so much enthusiasm was evinced by the passengers that the car stopped a few minutes.

NEWPORTVILLE—On Saturday last Mr. and Mrs. Charles Matthews of this place took their annual vacation. They left Bristol for Barnegat Bay via Toms River, Bayville, Lenoka and Forked River. They attended the M. E. Church at Goodluck on Sunday and heard an eloquent sermon. On Monday Mr. Matthews sailed out on Barnegat Bay and caught 39 weak fish and 175 (not Baltimore crabs, Mr. Matthews has a novel way in catching crabs, also. He removed his shoes and as his feet were dangling in the waters a crab grabbed him by the index toe and of course Mr. Matthews quickly gathered Mr. Crab into the boat and had to use pretty rough persuasion to make Mr. Crab let go his firm hold. On Wednesday he went out sailing and visited the Barnegat Light-house, which is 200 feet above the level of the sea. On Thursday he went gunning and shot several snipe. After another day's fishing—the large catch being necessary for the services of a horse and wagon to haul it home, it was also necessary for him to come home to Newportville, where he had found business had increased so rapidly that he will have to give up all thoughts of going to Barnegat Bay again this season—crabs or no crabs.

Howard Douglass has tendered his resignation as a member of the Bristol police force.

Thomas L. Leedom Company has plans drawn for the erection of an addition to their carpet mill which will be a three-story building 200 feet long. It is said that the firm will engage in tapestry weaving in addition to their ingrain business.

Word was received at Bristol yesterday that the stables of Patrick Gallagher, the Philadelphia liquor merchant, at Emille, were on fire and in danger of being a total loss. The stable contained a number of blooded racing horses.

LOOKING FOR SOMETHING?

"WASHINGTON REPORT"
By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.
The very agencies of our Government—military and civilian intelligence units—that are charged with the duty of guarding U. S. security are being infiltrated today by Soviet agents, Communists and incompetents.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is an exception—but the facts apply to the security units of the Defense Department—Army, Navy and Air Force—and the counter-intelligence departments of most of them.

This is a serious charge, particularly in the face of loyalty investigations, Congressional housecleanings of Reds in the government and the efforts of some officers in the military's counter-intelligence corps. Yet the facts are plain. The Communists did not quit when the fall doors slammed shut on Alger Hiss; they did not quit when Klaus Fuchs confessed, or when Harry Gold was caught in the FBI dragnet.

The scandals of today involving the Internal Revenue Bureau, the McCarran investigation of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and current exposes of Soviet agents in the United Nations and the diplomatic corps are important investigations. But they are mild in comparison to what a Congressional inquiry would unearth if an investigation of Red infiltration into intelligence units were undertaken.

In one particular branch of the Army, one of the most sensitive intelligence units in the Pentagon, a man was put on the payroll who openly boasted that he was trying to join the Communist party, that he thought all reactionary Congressmen should be killed. He worked for eight months before it was determined that he lacked average mental balance and was fired. One of his closest buddies still works in the agency.

There are others. Some stories sound impossible or too ludicrous for belief, but, unfortunately, they happen to be true. They are factual enough to cause military officers to risk their careers to relate them in private; factual enough for Civil Service employees with 20 years' service to risk their jobs to produce documents and details to prove it. And I don't mean one or two disgruntled officers or employees. These are men of competence, with backgrounds of faithful service to their country. And they are scared. Counter-intelligence agents have been transferred out of Washington when their investigations led them too close to the truth. A too persistent army general is under orders for duty in California. He talked when higher authorities in the Pentagon refused to heed his warnings or his suspect and incompetent aides. He remains in Washington only because an irate Senator demanded that the Secretary of the Army keep him here until Congress returns and the proper committee can investigate.

A colonel has been relieved of his intelligence duty in Washington and transferred to Alaska. He stepped on too many toes trying to clean Communist cells out of his intelligence unit. Another colonel with native technical skill in electronics has been ordered out of the Pentagon. An intelligence officer of lesser rank and his assistant are momentarily expecting to be shanghaied to troop commands where their training in intelligence will be wasted. A civilian employee in highly technical work, who is rated as a genius in certain secret developments, is in serious trouble because his superiors refuse to clean out Reds and incompetents.

Communists have two goals in infiltrating U. S. intelligence agencies. The first is to learn what the various agencies are doing, what they know and what counter-intelligence efforts are used; the second, to hamper this activity by slowing down paper work, by endless conferences and by forcing incompetents into jobs where skill and competence is required.

The subject is a proper one for a Senatorial inquiry. The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee undoubtedly is the proper group to make the inquiry.

Entertainment To Replace Pennel PTA Meeting

PENNDLE, Dec. 17—The Pennel P. T. A. in cooperation with Pennel public school, will hold a Christmas entertainment, Thursday at 7:30 p. m. This year, due to the limited amount of space in the school building, it will be held in the auditorium of Oakhurst Chapel, Durham road.

The children, teachers and parents are working hard to give another excellent performance and all parents are invited to be present. This entertainment will be held in place of the monthly business meeting.

Scenes Shot at R. & H. Used in "Eyes of Flight"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17—Air Force and Navy officials today accepted the new training film "Eyes of Flight" for instruction of personnel in the handling and maintenance of transparent Plexiglas enclosures on aircraft. Brig. Gen. Brooke E. Allen, Commanding General, Air Pictorial Service, U. S. A. F., and Capt. L. O. Fox, Director, Maintenance Division, Bureau of Aeronautics, U. S. N. received for their respective services 25 prints of the 31-minute color film at exercises which followed a preview in the Pentagon. The prints were presented on behalf of Rohm & Haas Co. by Dr. F. Otto Haas, vice president.

Production by Paul R. Thoma

Productions Inc. of New York included shooting many scenes at various air bases, with the co-operation of the Departments of the Air Force and Navy, as well as that of technical personnel from the Plastics department of Rohm & Haas Co., Bristol.

NO SANTA CLAUS VISITS LATIN AMERICAN KIDDIES

By DAVID FRANKLYN MARTIN
Central Press Correspondent

THE AMERICAN, visiting our neighbors to the south, the Latin Americans, during the Christmas season find many things different from the familiar Christmas season at home.

Accustomed as Americans are to Santa Claus' playing a major part at Christmastime with the emphasis being placed on making children happy, it is surprising to find that in the Latin American countries Santa Claus just isn't.

Surprise mounts even higher when it is discovered that there are no gifts for the children on Christmas. Christmas Eve is still Christmas Eve in Latin America but it is not the night of expectation it is in the United States because Latin American children know that there won't be a thing for them the next morning.

Latin Americans are predominantly Roman Catholic. More than that they take their religion most seriously with daily attendance at church even if only for a few minutes. It is natural, then, to find their observance of Christmas and the Christmas season follows very closely the Bible story of the birth of the Infant Jesus.

Christmas Eve, called La Noche Buena in Spanish, is the night before the birth of Christ just as it is in the United States. But gift preparation is largely discarded for other things. All Catholic churches in Latin America hold mass on Christmas eve. Some may not go to church very much during the rest of the year, but on Christmas eve almost everyone does.

At midnight, the family gathers at the table for a Cena, or supper, as it is called in Spanish. Rich and poor will have something depending on their financial limitations.

It's Always Pig
Roast young pig is the center of that Cena. Rich families will have a whole one. Poorer families will have a piece of roast young pig, the size depending on the money that is available for such a treat. In addition to the pig, there are sweets of various kinds, unknown in the United States for the most part.

On Christmas day there are no Christmas trees as in the United States, but in almost every home there is a reproduction of the manger where Christ was born. Again the financial status of the family determines how lavish this manger will be. In the richer homes the manger will often include a reproduction of a village or a part of the village of Bethlehem with the manger being the central feature.

In many of the richer homes this reproduction will take up one entire corner of the living room. In homes of the poorer people, the reproduction will be much reduced, sometimes consisting only of a manger with the Infant Jesus and with Mary and Joseph nearby watching over their newborn Son.

The miniatures that go to make up these reproductions are carefully put away after the Christmas season and kept until the next year when a few extra lambs, a few more angels, some more people will be added.

Peddlers sell toys from street stalls like these between Christmas and the night of Jan. 5 in the Latin-American nations.

On Christmas Day there are gifts in Latin America but not for the children. They have never received gifts at that time so they think nothing of it. The gift giving is for the adults.

These gifts, however, are not on the lavish scale so often practiced in the United States. They are much more modest and fewer in number.

The gift giving time in Latin America is on the saint's day which means that whoever is the saint of a person determines the day to be celebrated. For instance, if a son is named Juan, which is the Spanish for John, then St. John is said to be the saint of Juan and when St. John's day comes, Juan receives gifts.

Gifts on Jan. 5
While the children receive nothing on Christmas they do have their day and they do have as much fun and joy as the children in the United States. Instead of Santa Claus' bringing gifts on Christmas eve, they have Los Tres Magos or, as it is called in English, the Three Wise Men bringing the gifts for the children.

Los Tres Magos come on the night of Jan. 5, bearing their gifts to the children in Latin America just as the Three Wise Men went to the manger on the same night bearing gifts to the Infant Jesus.

The same uneasiness, the same expectancy, the same bubbling over of happiness are seen among the children as Jan. 5 nears as are seen among the children of the United States as Dec. 25 approaches. Soon after Christmas, toys begin to appear in the stores, everything from dolls and baby buggies for the girls to pistols for the boys. Street peddlers set up temporary stands along the street. Mothers and fathers bring their children downtown and the children indicate with enthusiasm what they want Los Tres Magos to bring them.

The better financed families buy their gifts early and sneak them in the house when the children are not around or else hide them in some relative's or friend's house until the night of Jan. 5, when they are taken home after the children go to bed.

Wait for Bargains
The poorer families will wait until Jan. 5, often well along in the evening, to buy their toys. By that time the stores and street peddlers are reducing prices and the poorer families buy toys so their children may have as happy a day on the morrow as possible.

At home the children are in bed filled with happiness and expectancy for the morrow. It is hard for many of them to go to sleep just as in the United States and most likely they dream of dolls, baseballs and gloves, baby buggies and cribs, pistols and guns and the hundred and one other things that children hold dear all over the world.

When the morning of Jan. 6 finally arrives, the children are up early eager to see what Los Magos have brought them. Soon they appear on the streets with their new toys and often with some new clothing.

To the Latin American child Los Tres Magos are just as real as Santa Claus is to children in the United States. And you can bet the children in Latin America put on their best behavior just before that fatal Jan. 5 just as children in the United States do before Dec. 25 because Los Tres Magos do not bring toys to the boys and girls.

pipelines has not been negotiated," it is stated. Agreements have been given to the residents for their approval or rejection. The stipulations of this agreement have not been found very tempting by some of the landholders. "The owners are offered 60c a running foot for a swath of land 20 feet wide. Thus for the use of a piece of land 100 feet long and 20 feet wide, 2000 sq. feet of land, they are offered $60. Most of the owners feel that this is not enough of a reimbursement, especially since the agreement would forbid the growing of trees or shrubs on the land, would permit signs and manholes to be erected, and stipulates that every fence that crosses this land must be provided with a gate. The ground could be torn up at any time by the company, while the owners would still be required to pay taxes on it."

The original lots, divided by Mr. Ferguson developer of the area, when the land was developed, were set up only 20 feet wide, so that the owners with only one or two lots would be giving up a considerable portion of their land to the company. The three largest land holders in this area who will be affected are Charles Goodbred, Kent Vandegrift and Robert Cameron, the latter tax collector for Bristol township. Mr. Cameron stated that he was neither opposed to nor in favor of the proposed project, as he did not yet have enough information on the matter.

However, not all of the people who oppose the project are the landholders in question. Elwyn Smith, one of the leaders of the opposition, cited numerous other possible flaws in the plan that should be considered. He stated that, "I understand that the plant is expected to release 8,000,000 gallons of sewage into the Neshaminy creek each day. This would greatly increase the danger of a destructive flood in this area. Furthermore, the principal community that this system would serve is not even in Bristol township."

Mr. Smith further stated that the residents of Fergusonville realize that the Fairless Hills community needs an outlet somewhere on the Neshaminy, and that in the near future this immediate area would also require a drainage system. Mr. Smith stated that the residents of this area want a guarantee that they will be able to tie into the system for the cost of installation after the project has been sold to a utility company.

Though the residents of this area have been assured that there will be no odors from the plant or the operation, a few protests have been raised by people in Maple Shade, and by a few of the residents across the creek from Fergusonville.

One of the landowners, Thomas Crawford, will be unable to sign his agreement as he is now fighting in Korea.

Recipe Joins Smoked Butt, Dried Limas

Here's a combination you'll serve time and again—smoked shoulder butt and lima beans, says Reba Staggs, home economist. The smoky flavor of the shoulder butt

(the boneless roll from the Boston butt) combines perfectly with dried limas. They are slowly simmered together in water to cover.

Smoked Shoulder Butt-Lima Beans
2 to 3 pounds smoked shoulder butt
1 pound dried lima beans
Water

Cover beans with water and soak over night. Add more water to cover beans, cover and simmer for 30 minutes. Add shoulder butt and water just to cover. Cover and simmer 2 hours or until meat is tender and beans are done. 6 to 8 servings.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

They Had Better Try

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.

As the 1952 elections (now hardly more than ten months off) approach, the more thoughtful professors of practical politics are pondering again the facts and figures concerning the qualified voters who do not vote—and what to do about it. These were what startlingly revealed in but perhaps have not received attention they deserve.

In that year considerably less than a majority of the qualified voters participated in the election. Total vote for the Messrs. Truman, Dewey, Wallace and Thurmond was 47,000,000. This was 600,000 less than the combined vote of Willie vote in 1940. Although the population of the country increased more than fourteen percent between 1940 and 1950, the number of those who cast ballots in 1948 was six percent less than eight years ago. It generally accepted that the number of potential voters keeps pace with the population increase. That there were in 1948 approximately 7,000,000 more such voters in 1940. Yet, 2,000,000 less were cast. In other words, nonvoters jumped something 10,000,000 in eight years.

Small, the absurdly small vote 1948 has been ascribed to the "confidence" of Mr. Dewey and "poor light" he made, despite that in nearly every state an ahead of his ticket and Mr. man ran behind his. In an amazing article on this subject the weekly news letter "Human Events," Mr. Frank Chodorov points that there is a great deal more to this absentee voting problem than that. It cannot be explained blaming it on Mr. Dewey or regarding 1948 as an exceptional year.

The fact is, he says, that ever since women suffrage the number of Americans who do not exercise the prerogative of citizenship has been in excess of those who do. However, the conclusion that women value the ballot less than men is not sound. Actually, long before they got the vote the number of stay-at-home masculine voters was very large. Women suffrage merely increased their number and made the figures more glaring. Of course, when the point is reached, as it was in 1944 and 1948, where only a minority of the potential voters take part in the election, our talk about majority rule under our political system becomes a joke. It is the minority which rules; the majority keeps away from the polls.

Undoubtedly this trend of the voters not to vote has existed for a good many years. It is Mr. Chodorov's view that while partly it can be accounted for by inertia, apathy and ignorance, these, he says, "can be written off as of no consequence, and perhaps the country is better off that they take no part in its public affairs. But, among the non-voters, there are unquestionably a large number whose integrity and intelligence impels them to reject what the political parties have to offer; they see no point in replacing one set of rascals by another and will not under any circumstances underwrite rascality. They are not signing blank checks."

The marked acceleration of this trend in the last twelve years, it is argued, is because there just has been no clear-cut issue between the parties. "In the last four elections," says Mr. Chodorov, "all the candidates and all the parties have unanimously advocated a policy of statism, more government intervention in social affairs, greater contraction of personal liberty. Nothing else was offered." During those sixteen years abstention from voting has increased enormously. The deduction that this lack of choice has been the big factor seems inescapable. There appears no other way to explain it.

If a similar lack of choice as to basic principles is presented in the next campaign and there is no mass reaction against corruption, there is no reason to believe that the absentee trend will not continue.

even increase—and again less than a majority of the potential voters will take part in the election of a President. Strip the breast-beating platitudes from the last four Republican platforms and what, in effect, the Republicans have said was that they would not change the direction in which we are headed but would manage things better. To this proposal, the Chodorov theory is that a majority of the intelligent voters, in effect, said "nuts" and refrained from voting.

The trouble seems to be that the Democrats having apparently found a demagogic formula for victory, the Republicans afraid to challenge their socialistic program directly, have tried to ride in on it, too. Four times they have failed and every time the absentee voters have increased. It does not seem that with this record clearly before them they must in 1952 offer the country a choice by presenting a candidate and a platform so strongly anti New Deal and Fair Deal that no one can mistake it. Will the party win with that kind of program and candidate? With the revealed corruption on the other side it should. In any event, it had better try.

Unwrap Fresh Meat Before Storing: Expert

To get the most from the meat you buy, it's important that you take proper care of it from the time purchased to the time it is cooked, points out Reba Stagg, home economist.

The first step in correct care is removing the heavy store wrap from the meat. A little drying of the meat surface is desirable for best keeping. Unwrapped, the meat should then be left uncovered or lightly topped with a sheet of waxed paper in a shallow dish or in the refrigerator meat keeper and placed in the coldest spot of the refrigerator.

Cured hams, bacon and other wrapped cured meats, and canned hams should be stored in the refrigerator. When cooking bacon, remove only the slices to be prepared. When left outside, moisture will condense on the bacon and lessen its keeping qualities.

After meat is cooked, it should be removed from the bone in as large pieces as possible, then tightly wrapped for storing in the refrigerator. Cooked meat is always closely covered to prevent further drying.

Effective Safety Education

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

A FEW weeks ago I reported in this column that I had urged, in an address before the recent convention of the National Safety Council, that leaders in safety education prevail on parents of preschool children to train these youngsters at home in adequate restraints as the first essential to their safety now and in later years.

In the acres of print on safety education, virtually all the emphasis has been on the vigilance of adults to keep dangers from the tot. Almost nothing has been devoted to effective training of the toddler in avoidance by himself of known constant dangers.

More Vigilant

We should be even more vigilant and try harder to connect pleasure in the child's mind with safe behavior. But these means are not enough, hardly half enough. The child, as soon as he begins to creep and walk, needs to learn to avoid certain specific known dangers automatically long before he can see the reason why. His native urges to approach known dangers are so strong, that he is disinclined to respond to persuasive efforts to divert him and to cultivate an attitude of caution toward new perils.

Therefore, he needs to connect pain in his experience with constant specific hazards; also with such monosyllables as NO, DON'T, or STOP. He needs to be trained so skillfully in his very early years with such pain-connector that he will automatically and constantly respect such verbal commands to save him from new hazards.

After I presented the foregoing ideas before the National Safety Congress at Chicago, I was amazed during the open discussion following the presentation, to hear no expression of disagreement, but strong approval from the delegates. They were directors of safety councils from various cities throughout the United States and safety experts for many large industries and a number of civic organizations. One delegate rose to say: "I heartily agree with you, but in the parent education courses given in our community, all the experts and literature say that physical pain like spanking is condemned."

To which I replied: "You have gone to the heart of this matter. All over America young parents are still told about the same. The girls, who will be the mothers of tomorrow, are almost universally being taught in high schools and colleges that physical pain is out as a means of teaching safety habits to the toddler. Just watch him, divert him from dangers, attract him to safe places, reason and persuade him. In the meantime, ever so many little lives are being snuffed out, and sometimes right before the helpless reasoner and persuader."

How long are the rank and file of parent counselors going to be barriers to effective safety education in the preschool years? Until parents' common sense ridicules them out of court, as it has done to the so-called "progressive" educators.

tation committee, because that committee never saw the ordinance; nor is it due to lack of study on the part of the water committee."

The burgess went on to say: "Our solicitor, J. L. Kilcoyne, didn't have opportunity to study the ordinance, as it was not handed to him until the day it was presented to council. I feel at the present time from what little I heard of the ordinance at the last meeting of council, that they arrived at the 60 per cent figure arbitrarily, without proper research and study."

The ordinance, which passed council last Monday evening would impose a sewer rent of 60 per cent of the present water charges on borough industries and residents. The ordinance was passed after a stormy session. The vote was 11-7.

The burgess says he was not given sufficient time to study the ordinance, and desires to make close study of the same before making his decision.

The measure was outlined to furnish revenue for interest and principal payments on $400,000 bond issue to finance the renovation of the sewer system.

In case of the burgess' veto, a two-thirds vote of councilmen would be required to pass the bill over the veto.

 be able to find a place to park so easily.

Mr. Vincent Caterino of 916 Spring street expressed his hometown pride by saying, "I live here and I believe that the local merchants should have the local business."

Mr. Gordon Gilbert, Jr., who lives at 590 Bath street, claimed that the prices in Bristol were more reasonable because the local shops "don't have the high overhead of the huge metropolitan department stores."

Miss Mary Foster from 977 Prospect avenue in Crocydon, and Miss Rita Iannucci of 924 Pond street, when interviewed, agreed that "money last longer in Bristol."

Mrs. George D. Hall of 280 East Circle, shops in Bristol "to avoid all of the confusion in shopping, at least as much as is possible during the Christmas season."

Mrs. Kindred Ferguson who lives in Oakford said that she has always been able to find what she wanted in the wide selection of Christmas gifts offered by the Bristol merchants.

People shop in Bristol because they can find the ideal Christmas gifts with a maximum of ease and with a minimum of cost and confusion.

Kiwanians Arrange A Party; Invite Kiddies

agent for the Miami Airlines which operated the ill-starred plane, was questioned by Joseph O. Fluet, chief C.A.B. investigator for the New York area.

Witnesses said the plane was in trouble almost immediately after the takeoff, with smoke pouring from one of the engines. Less than five minutes later the plane flew over Union City, N. J., and two minutes after that it crashed-dived in flames in the heart of Elizabeth with a blast heard five miles away in the quiet Sunday afternoon.

Over Union City, the pilot, identified as Capt. Albert C. Lyons of Hialeah, Fla., radioed the control tower at the Newark field that he was in trouble and heading back.

He swung the plane in a wide circle and struggled over Elizabeth for altitude as thousands watched in horror but one wing fell off and the plane plummeted like a stone on the muddy bank of the Elizabeth river.

In falling, the C-46 sheared off the roof of a vacant house and crashed into a brick building owned by the Elizabeth Water Company. One witness said "it came down walling like a Banshee."

It was the only clear space in the densely-populated Jersey area and witnesses and police said the pilot avoided possibly hundreds of additional casualties by pointing the wobbling, house-skimming plane to the sluggish stream.

Three hundred police, all available fire equipment, ambulances and Red Cross and civilian defense disaster units rushed to the scene. Three priests approached the wreckage to administer last rites but they and rescuers were driven back by the fierce flames.

The body of a baby was thrown on the bank of the river. Most of the others, crew and passengers, died in the plane from which was heard the screams of the dying.

When rescuers finally were able to approach the red-hot tangle of wreckage they reported they found the dead "jammed up into a horrible mass."

They said they found a father and child in close embrace. Most of the bodies were burned or torn beyond recognition.

Ernest Strahlendorf, 59, an ambulance driver whose vehicle was the second to reach the scene, said that firemen told him, "It's no use; they're all dead." He added:

"Some of the bodies were lying in the river. I saw one man in the water. His clothes were all burned off. Inside the plane the people were rolled up together like a ball. They all looked burned."

Walter Burns of Elizabeth said he was in an alley next to his home when he saw the plane. "I was paralyzed for a moment when I saw it," he said, "then I ran across the street to escape it. Part of a wing fell on the house next to me, but luckily the house has been empty for a month."

Burns' wife, Marie, and his daughter Patricia, were in their home at the time. Mrs. Burns said, "I ran outside to see what had happened and found Patricia had fainted near the door."

"Then I heard this terrible crash. It shook the house and I thought the house had been hit. The plane actually landed only 100 feet away, near the river. It was the only place in the entire section where the pilot could have landed it without killing someone."

Bud Kessler, a World War Two pilot, said he saw the plane's right engine burning. He said the pilot feathered the engine. He added: "I thought he'd be all right, but then it burst into flames again and the wing fell off."

Lad, 5, Suffers From Exposure; Missing 5 Hours

agency policemen, firemen and volunteers who made an intensive search through Doylestown streets and the surrounding Bucks county countryside.

The boy and his father, who live on Cherry lane, in Peble Hill, a community two miles east of Doylestown, went to Doylestown Friday night and could not get back home because of the snow.

They stayed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dennis, on Lower State road, and at 11 a. m. yesterday set out on the shopping trip to a supermarket on W. State street. While the elder Jonaitis was shopping, Victor disappeared.

When no trace of the boy was found by nightfall, Chief of Police Felix Gowan sounded a general alarm and asked for volunteers. Shortly before the boy was found a woman reported to police she heard the moans of a child from a field in the Normal Bishop Farm, off Broad street, about a mile from the store where the boy had started off on his journey.

A searching party headed by Patrolman John McIntyre combed the area and at 8:30 p. m. came across Victor, lying on the snow and ice as if he were sound asleep. His hands were bare, and his mittens were hanging loosely from a cord around his neck.

Others in the searching party were John Ament, Charles Bouc, Elwood Fretz and John Happ. The boy was wrapped in overcoats and an ambulance summoned.

The boy's mother, who recently was hospitalized, was not told of Victor's mishap.

At the Doylestown Hospital, the boy was placed in an oxygen tent. Physicians said his condition is critical.

Doctors are seeking to cure his frostbite by the same process being used on troops in Korea.

Likely To Fix Tolls On New Bridge Today

the Freeway now being built through Trenton. It is situated between the lower free bridge and the Pennsylvania Railroad bridge. Piers for the bridge and its approaches were completed months ago but work came to a standstill because no steel was available.

The steel is now being fabricated and the first deliveries are expected to be made before January 1. William H. Wilson, chief engineer for the Joint Bridge Commission, estimates that if there are no further delays in steel delivery and construction, the new bridge will be opened to traffic by next July 1st.

Approaches to the bridges on the Trenton side begin at South Broad street. On the Morrisville side, the approaches extend beyond the borough limits where they link up with the old Lincoln Highway or Route 1. The New Jersey State Highway Department is constructing the Freeway through Trenton along the bed of the old Delaware and Raritan Canal. Had the State Highway Department built the bridge approaches it would have cost a few million dollars more. With the Bridge Commission building the approaches, they can be paid for out of the bridge tolls.

Hutchinson-Barth Nuptials Are Solemnized at Croydon

CROYDON, Dec. 17 — The wedding of Miss Elaine Carole Hutchinson, 227 Hillcrest avenue, to Mr. Harry G. Barth, Christy avenue, was performed on Saturday, at one o'clock in St. Luke's Lutheran parsonage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Hutchinson. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barth. The Rev. Lawrence E. Wachholz officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Jean Hutchinson, who chose an afternoon dress in powder blue bengaline, fashioned with a bolero jacket and full skirt. Necklines of the dress and jacket had rhinestone and seed pearl trim. She wore a white hat and veil. Her accessories were in navy blue. She wore a corsage of deep rose rosebuds.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. George Barth. The bride's gown was of white Chantilly lace, ballerina length. It was fashioned with a full skirt, tight fitting waist with a tiny collar, bolero jacket. The neckline of the gown and jacket were trimmed with seed pearls. A row of tiny buttons trimmed the jacket down both sides of the front. Her hat was of white satin with veil. She wore a white rosebud corsage.

Mrs. Hutchinson, mother of the bride, chose a street length dress in ashes of roses tone, made with a bolero jacket. Her accessories were in navy blue. She wore a deep rose corsage of rosebuds. The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of navy blue trimmed with nailheads, accessories in black, and a pink rosebud corsage.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Thirty of the immediate families attended. The couple left for a honeymoon at Niagara Falls, N. Y. They will reside at an apartment at 806 State road.

The bride presented her maid of honor with a gold necklace and earring set with pearl insets. The bridegroom presented his best man with an alligator wallet.

The bride is an employee of Bell Telephone Co., Cornwells Heights. The bridegroom is affiliated with his father in the plumbing business.

Gala Dinner and Dance Conducted by Realtors

DOYLESTOWN, Dec. 17 — With 179 in attendance, Bucks County Board of Realtors held a Christmas party at the country club, here, Thursday evening. It is said to be the largest and most colorful in the club's history.

The affair was in the form of a dinner-dance. President J. Carroll Maffey, Jr., and committee chairman Francis J. Hupp saw that everything possible was done to make this a most delightful function.

Harrison Gift served as Santa Claus. A Dutch band provided music, and there was entertainment. Prizes were also awarded. President-elect of the board is Richard W. Fechtenburg, Eddington.

TWO GAMES ARE BOOKED HERE THIS EVENING

Two games are on tap in the Bristol Basketball League tonight on the Goodwill Hose Company court. In the first tilt, starting at 7:30 o'clock, the Cornwells Boys Club will meet Rohm & Haas, while in the second engagement, the Profy's will play the Hibernians.

Local fans who witnessed the opening games of the circuit last week were amazed of the type of basketball that the boys could play on a court as spacious as the Goodwill floor. Passing was much better and fewer but more accurate shots made.

Cornwells, which exhibited the finest passing attack of the teams but lost to Luciano Brothers, will have a tough tilt with the chemical workers. The Rohm & Haas five is a much improved team from last season and the addition of such players as Walter Zook, Toby Oriola, Bill Butz and Nick Spadacino may give the Maple Beach aggregation the spark it needed for a championship quintet.

The Cornwells starting quintet will be composed of: Pete Bound, Reggie Samero, Walt Smith, Al Bedner, and Ed Oliver.

The Profy-Hibernians contest is expected to be a thriller. The Hibs, defending champions, beat Franklin by a last quarter rally last week while the Profymen were beaten by Rohm & Haas.

Manager Ray Nichols, of Profy's, is scouting around for several additions to aid Howie Grant, Ham Konefal, Alan Burton, Jim Egli, and Bill McGerr and feels that he has come up with the star in Joe Jones, who is stationed at Fort Monmouth.

Manager Brock Harkins has added Charlie Deane to his roster which is expected to strengthen the Cornwells team.

Manager Harkins will start Bill Burr, Charlie Simmons, Horace Saxton, Joe Mulligan, and Michael Downs against the Hibs.
